Grace, the single-mother of nine-year old Zachary, has finally found love again in John, and everything feels so close to perfect. As the holiday season approaches, Grace & Zachary's favourite time of year, Grace realizes she is building a life with a man who just doesn't do Christmas. She busies herself with the decorating and all of the much-cherished seasonal festivities, while John refuses to participate. As the tension between them builds, the real reasons begin to unfold as to why they both approach this holiday so very differently. Can John cast his feelings aside and become the man and the father that Grace & Zachary need? Can the joy & magic of the Holiday season cause even the most cynical heart to come out of the cold?
